

IT'S REALLY HAPPENING.

The Future of Hawk Mountain is Taking Flight.

Construction is set to begin next spring, and our new Visitor Center is closer than ever to becoming a reality. Thanks to the extraordinary generosity of supporters like you, we have already raised $10 million toward our expanded $13 million campaign goal for the new Center for Global Raptor Conservation. Now, just $3 million stands between us and the completion of this once-in-a-generation project. Your support at this pivotal moment will help create a world-class center that inspires visitors, advances raptor conservation, and protects these extraordinary birds for generations to come.

Over the past several months, our architects, engineers, staff, board, and construction team have been transforming ideas into reality and every meeting, and every detail brings us one step closer to creating a Visitor Center worthy of Hawk Mountain's global conservation mission.

What excites me the most is this will be a welcoming gateway to conservation—a place where families gather, students discover nature, scientists share their work, and visitors from around the world experience the wonder of Hawk Mountain.

A Place to Gather

A beautiful multipurpose room, covered porches, outdoor terraces, and flexible indoor spaces will welcome donors, school groups, community groups, and visitors daily. It's a visitor center that puts the visitor first.

Built for Everyone

With a fully ADA-integrated design, every visitor will experience Hawk Mountain comfortably for generations to come.

And we will draw inspiration from the past by repurposing the signature-stained glass and carved beam above the entrance doors to make you feel at home in the new facility.

Designed With Nature in Mind

Natural stone, timber framing, native landscaping, bird-friendly glass, and key green building features demonstrate our commitment to sustainable design. Hawk Mountain has educated generations in raptor conservation and will continue to inspire raptor preservation into the future. Please contact me with questions or to arrange a confidential discussion to support this important work. Together, we will build a bright future for raptors and people.

With gratitude,
